

Thanks for the comments. I have made the requested changes.

I would be curious to know how the MMonVHF and others determine the propagation mode. My guess is they are making some association with other factors (e.g. moon location, time of day/year etc) and maybe also accounting for signal-to-noise and other parameters. It would be useful to see a description of the classifier.